SATURDAY EVEG, FEB. 12, 1921.

LANCOLA'S ANSWER SHOULD BE OUR ANSWER.

On this 122nd anniversary of the birth of Abraham Lincoln, and at a time when we as a people are facing unselved problems of world peace as Lincoln facen the unsolved problems of civil war, it is fitting that we have opportunity to have brought vividly and impressively to our attention the reals, faith and spirit of the Giest

Not alone to give us a clearer ineight into and more approclative in-derstanding of his life, character and matchless gervice to markfuld but also to so stimulate our courage that we can face as interteringly as did be the daugers by wak have are meanered and to prompt us to make as surely as he made the right choice of ways over which to travel if we hope to have America take and hold its rightful place us a nation whose God is the

To serve these purposes it on; individua! lives as eltizens northin. could be more opportune or inspiring Harding has written for a book, en-littled 'Abraham Lincoln, Man of God' by Dr. John We-ley Hill, chancellor of the Lincoln Memorial Um easts at Cumberland Gap. Tenn In us mess-age to the admirers of Linco.r. among whom all loyal Americans are in-cauded, Mr Harding says in pacet: "Abraham Emoch was from his earliest youth religious. The Bible was the Book of books to him, He prayed so constantly and confidently as to seem a kind of modern Brother Lawrence practicing the presence of God. He worked our a theology in general conformity with the accepted standards of Chievbanity. In the darkest hour of his White House days when personal becausement was added to national anxiety, he literally lived on his knees.

Ver eith in his lifet me, he was often charged with infidelity. Some 100 near the trees to see the woods even wrote books attribut-ing Lincoln's frequent depression to irreligion. He believed he was deleated for office in 1841 because of the report that he was not a Christian. Many still are blinded by the same defusion. 'A book has long been needed to bring discussion to an end, to set at rest much foolish speculation and to convince the most incredulous that Abraham Lincoln, man of God, was as sincere in his religious faith as Robert E. Lee or William E. Gladstone,

These times as truly try men s souls as Lincoln's times. Prop-lems of today are as grave and complex as the problems to which Encoin brought as clear a mind and pure a soul as modern times have known. A free people whose freedom has been purchased at a great price must now choose between the ingrely economic and the spiritually moral, between the trresponsible Marrianism so sub-tle that even the timid who dare not champion it outright are still under its dominion, and Lincoln-ism calling as loudly today as in the Gettysburg address: "This nation, under God, shal, have a new birth of freedom.

"We are at the parting of the ways. Is our thought to function in the lowlands of materialism in the days before us or in the religious highlands where Lincoln lived and died that we might live? That ls the supreme question we have now to answer.

Lincoln, man of God, has taught us theore, ight of con, has the first lead to work to a newer this question as only as the should be an wered and only as the be safely or wisely answered - by maintaining a firm relunce upon and an unwavering tath in that fast God who presides over the destinies of nations which exalteth righteousness.
